HOLE(Y) TARANTULA! Repaired With Super Glue

Zookeepers at Oklahoma City Zoo recently saved the life of one of their favorite, long-term resident spiders using super glue ! The brown tarantula has resided in the Oklahoma Trails exhibit since 2007 and is about 6 or 7 years old. Recently, zookeepers “spotted a soft, watery glob on top of her”. Further investigation led to the discovery of “a tear in its abdomen”. A procedure to “tap the mass back inside” was then followed up by repairing the cut with a super glue adhesive. So far the repair is holding and the female tarantula may end living out her life expectancy, which can be up to 30 years according to Wikipedia.
